politicians of New-York, died at his home, No. 102 West One-hundred-and-twenty-fourth-at., yesterday morning. His death resulted from cancer of the mouth, which appeared three years ago, caused it is scileved by a broken tooth producing ulceration. remanded until this morning and their request was by excessive smoking. The last months of his life were passed in intense suffering.

"Harry" Genet, as he was familiarly known, was born in this city sixty-one years ago. He was descended from Edmond Charles Genest, the French Minister to this country during Washington's Administration. Genest made his home in New-York and married a daughter of George Clinton. "Harry" Genet was a handsome man of fine physique and had a generous way that made him popular from his first start in politics, which dates back to the days of Fernando Wood and Mezart Hall. When Tweed began to be a power in the Democratic party Genet opposed him and fought him so vigorously that Tweed was glad to make terms with him. Thereafter Genet became one of Tweed's principal henchmen.

When the Harlem Court House was planned, Genet became counsel for the commission which had the building in charge, and with the aid of confederates son of ex-Alderman Finch. His brother, George took $300,000 out of the city treasury for a structure not worth $75,000. His prodigal liberality gained for him the nickname of "Prince Hal."

The exposure of the rascality of Tweed and his other associates did not deter Genet from seeking to return to the Legislature again, and he was elected in 1872 to the Assembly from the (new) XXIIId District, receiving more votes than the other candidates com-bined. But he never took his seat. Before the following January 1, when his term as Assemblyman egan, he was arraigned in the General Sessions for onspiracy to defraud the city, and the day for his trial was fixed. In the custody of a deputy sheriff was allowed to visit his family at his home. He cluded the officer and succeeded in getting out of the house by way of the roof, and with the assistance of friends he escaped from the country. He was absent for about nine years, when he returned and volum tardy surrendered himself. Tweed was dead and the popular resentment at his crimes had greatly abated. popular resentment at his eximes had greatly abated. It. March, 1881, Judge Daniels sentenced Genet to rine months' imprisonment and a fine of $0,684. He was released in November following the sentence being shortened by good behavior, and his wife having raised the money to pay his fine.

The funeral will be held at the Hastem Presbyterian Church file East One-hindred-and-twenty-fifth-st. The day will be announced hereafter.

NOT THROUGH HELL GATE TO THE FAIRS

A SUGGESTION THAT NEW-YORK AND BROOK-LYN AMALGAMATE ON THE OPENING DAY. Captain F. W. Vosburgh and A. C. Cheney, president of the National Board of Steam Navigation, as a committee representing that board, called on Mayor Grant vesterday to oppose the selection of any site for the World's Fair on the Sound above Hell Gate. said that the difficult navigation through Hell Gate would make the passage by steamboats dangerous, and would prevent the easy access which a water front somewhere else would have. They were in favor of a site that could be reached by steamboats of every size, and they objected to the Sound sites, not because there was not a water front at them, but because the East River was not suited, they said, for many steamships going through it at the same time. Captain Vosburgh says: There is an obvious serious objection to a location situated on the Sound, to wit: The difficult navigation from the city through Hell Gate, which, with the targe number of additional vessels required, especially in the evening, when that portion of the Sound is used daily by the regular steamers passing through the Gate bound east, would become dangerous, and in the event of inclement weaker or fog, would become impossible. Moreover, the distance from our harbor to the various points upon the Sound which are available is so considerable as to entail large additional expense and to occupy much time. a location is Pelham Bay, which for the reasons men-tioned is wholly undesirable. The location which seems most nearly to meet the

and Mr. Cheney left a letter on the subject, which various conditions suggested, and which therefore we pro-pose for your consideration as a site for the World's Fair of 1892, is that section of land lying south of Brooklyn, and with Bay Ridge for its water front, and extending along the high ridge to Fort Hamilton.

The steamboat time to this location is twenty minutes from the foot of Whitehall-st., and not over forty-five minutes from the furthest terminus of the railroads from the West, and the cost of transportation, therefore, would be inconsiderable. A thousand scree or more can be made available if necessary, and it has the largest and most convenient water front to be found around New-York.

No serious objection, it seems to us, can be suggested against this proposed location, save that it is not within the limits of the city of New-York. To this objection the answer is simple. Let the city of Brooklyn tender to the committee having this subject in charge, free of expense, the necessary amount of land required, and let the city of the necessary amount of land required, and let the city of New-York join with her in providing for a union of the two cities under one corporation, the official ceremony of which shall be the most interesting part of the inaugural exercises of the World's Fair of 1802. In a letter written by Joseph Bryne published yesterday, the lands described by him as being available for a World's Fair site, from Fort George to Kingsbridge Road, were given as embracing 160 acres. He writes to The Tribune that it should have read "600 acres."

CHICAGO SAYS IT HAS FIVE MILLIONS READY. Chicago, Sept. 6.-" The $5,000,000 guarantes fund has been informally piedged and if no one backs out. and we don't think any one will, the entire amount will be collected," said Secretary Graham, of the World's Fair press committee, to a reporter this noon. The names of those who had subscribed he declined to give, as the executive committee deemed it best to walt until the majority of the subscriptions had been collected. Secretary Cragin, of the Executive Committee, is responsible for the statement that George M. Pullman has subscribed $100,000 to the stock of the World's Fair Company, and it is understood that four other men will each subscribe a like sum.

MAYOR GRANT WON'T HAVE IT. Mayor Grant prepared a veto yesterday for the esolution adopted by the Board of Aldermen on Thursday directing a public hearing on October 3, on the application of the Jerome Avenue Railroad Company for permission to build a street railroad in that The Mayor said that he disliked the idea of Interfering with any hearing the Board might desire, but this resolution calls for the expenditure of money, and is, besides, his first opportunity for make ing known officially his entire disapproval of the project. He did not intend, further, that its pro-moters should entertain any unfounded expectations as to his action. "I am unalterably opposed," the Mayor said, "to a railroad of any sort in Jerome ave., because it is the only good driving road in ave., because it is the only good driving road in that portion of the city and a railroad would spell it for that purpose. I am informed, also, that the property-owners are opposed to this road."

The Mayor did not say that he was fur her opposed to the road because most of its incorporators are County Democrats. On the contrary he was very clear that politics had nothing to do with his oppo-sition.

WHAT THE MAYOR DID MEAN. Mayor Grant, alluding to his letter to the Police Justices regarding additional police courts, said yesterlay that his purpose had been misinterpreted. He had no desire, he said, for any advice from the justices to prevent the overcrowding of certain police stations teenth and Twenty-second, nocturnal "raids" were frequently made, resulting in the arrest of numbers of ing, as few were able to get bail at night. The Mayor thought that the justices might take turns in sitting at night in one of these stations, if not both of them, not to take ball only, but to act in cases. This would save the time of witnesses, respectable persons who sometimes were mixed with such cases without their fault would be spa the Sheriff's officers sought to get possession of the big factory of Meyer G. Cohen, cloaks and Jerseys, at No. 37 Lispenard-st, and Deputy Sheriff Kaufman, who had charge of the case, was rather roughly handled. The place had been closely guarded by representatives of the Importers and Traders' and Citizus' National Banks, to whom Mr. Cohen had transferred part of his assets. The doors were all locked and the big fron shutters drawn down. Deputy Sheriff Kaufman and five other deputies watched the place for some time, waiting for an opportunity to get in. About 3:30 a creditor called, and the door under the iron shutters was opened a little to let those inside see what he wanted. At that moment Deputy Sheriff Kaufman jumped to the door and on his hands and knees got through the small opening, and the other deputies were close behind him. One of the clerks grabbed Kaufman and tried to push him out, The inside door was pressed against the deputy, who was caught between it and the fron shutters. called for help and the five deputies got through the opening under the shutters, burst the door open, released their imprisoned companion, and got pos-

Judge Van Brunt, of the Supreme Court, yesterday, on application of Carter, Hughes & Cravath, granted attachments against Mr. Cohen in favor of Passavant on application of Carler, Indigos & Co. application of Passavant & Co. for $7,245, and in favor of Harding, Colby & Co. for $3,925. The Judge also granted other attachments in favor of J. J. Wysong & Co. $6,838; Iselin, Neeser & Co., $2,000, and Dieckerhoff, Raffleer & Co., $1,552. The grounds of the attachments were disposition of property with intent to delay, hinder and defraud creditors. It is alleged that Mr. Cohen made a lot of special assignments on Wednesday to secure certain creditors. The accounts were assigned to his lawyers, Townsond, Dyett & Arnstein, to secure $400 money loaned, and $2,500 for professional services; the stock was transferred to the importers and Traders' National Bank to secure $18,370, the amount Mr. Cohen owed the bank after it had given him credit for all sums collected on some open accounts formerly transferred to it. The surplus left after paying the above two claims goes next to the Citizens' National Bank to pay its claim, then to pay the claims of Carl L. Rose, Cohen's former partner, Mrs. Amelia Bondy, said to be Cohen's mother-in-law, and lastly to pay the amount due his wife. After all these are paid the general creditors are to get what is left.

His liabilities are now reported to be upward of $100,000.

LEGITIME ON HIS GUARD.

HE HAS LITTLE TO SAY-TO SAIL FOR FRANCE

General Legitime and the members of his party spent yesterday quietly at the Hotel Martin, with the exception of a visit to General Grant's tomb and short excursions in the streets. The Haytlan Consul-General, M. Deslandes, effectually prevented the approach of newspaper men to his former superfor, and strongly urged General Legitime to say nothing further for publication. In compliance with the Consul's advice, each member of the party was extremely guarded and uncommunicative. It was learned, however, by a Tribune reporter that Legitime was born at the town of Jeremie, Hayti, and at the beginning of his career became a clerk in the Custom House. He displayed more than ordinary ability and was udvanced step by step until the office of Chief Magistrate appeared to him and his friends as his natural goal. He and all those with him are sorely depressed by their evil fortunes, and have othing like well-defined plans for the future, of the young officers has left behind in the distracted island a wife and small children and other relatives.

The officers are known to Hyppolite as his most constant and uncompromising enemies, and they feel that it will never do for them to return so long as he has a voice in the affairs of Hayti.
